Re: The Warehouse, 206 S. Jefferson Street

Dear Chairman Wong and the Commission on Chicago Landmarks,

The Warehouse, located at 206 S. Jefferson Street, is a modest industrial building in the West Loop with a massive global impact. It was there that the legendary DJ Frankie Knuckles developed a new sound in the late 1970s and early 1980s: house music. A revolutionary melding of disco, gospel, R&B, and electronic music, house was the sound of liberation, resilience, and joy. From Chicago, this new sound spread from dancefloors to living rooms to radios to stadiums, defining popular music over the following decades and spawning and inspiring countless radio hits. House music, a Chicago-born creation, soon became an unstoppable worldwide phenomenon; today, it remains as beloved as ever and championed by generations of “house heads” both across the globe and here at home in Chicago.

The story of the Warehouse is not just one of music and innovation—it is the story of Chicago and the communities that make our city so distinct. Originally a space for Black queer clubgoers during the waning days of disco, the Warehouse was a sanctuary from an unwelcoming world. The culture and community forged within soon led to the establishment of a beloved Chicago space for music lovers of all backgrounds—everyone bound together by an irresistible new beat.

We now have an opportunity to tell the story of the Warehouse, Frankie Knuckles, and the birth of house. After learning of the possibility of the site being redeveloped, Preservation Chicago listed the Warehouse as one of Chicago’s 7 Most Endangered Buildings and the public demand for landmarking and protection has been staggering, demonstrating how much house music and the Warehouse mean to people around the world. As of this writing, a Change.org petition has garnered over 13,000 signatures requesting that the Warehouse be made a Chicago Landmark. These signatures come from people in every corner of the world: Argentina, Finland, Japan, Mongolia, South Africa, the Philippines, Latvia, Jamaica, and India, just to name a few. Meanwhile, the Warehouse and the potential threat facing it has been covered on the front page of the Chicago Tribune and in other major publications such as Paper Magazine, NME, Resident Advisor, The Architect's Newspaper, and DJ Magazine. The eyes of music lovers around the world are quite literally on Chicago to do the right thing by landmarking the Warehouse, protecting it for all time.

Since the announcement of the Warehouse as one of Preservation Chicago's Chicago 7 Most Endangered, I have had the privilege and joy of meeting and talking to dozens of people whose lives have been, in ways both big and small, changed forever by the Warehouse and house music: people whose fondest memories of their youth were spent on the dancefloor of the Warehouse, people who were inspired to become musicians because of Frankie Knuckles's innovation, people who found community within the brick walls of that hallowed space. It is an indescribable feeling to know that we are on the precipice of enshrining these beautiful stories forever with a Chicago Landmark designation.

Landmark status for the Warehouse would be a monumental accomplishment. Chicago's musical legacy and the history of Black and queer people in our city are regrettably underrepresented in our landmarks—this is the moment we begin working towards the rectification of these oversights. Today, we honor Frankie Knuckles and how he changed the world. Today, we honor house music.

Thank you to Landmarks staff for your incredible dedication and commitment to bringing the Warehouse to this stage of preliminary landmark consideration, and thank you to the Commission on Chicago Landmarks for your careful review.

Sincerely,

Max Chavez

Re: 204-208 South Jefferson Street (The Warehouse)

April 12, 2023

We write regarding Commission on Chicago Landmarks Meeting agenda item number 3, a Preliminary Landmark Recommendation for The Warehouse, located at 204-208 South Jefferson Street, in the 42nd Ward. Preservation Futures supports this Preliminary Landmark Recommendation and looks forward to the approval of the Chicago Landmarks Commission during the regular meeting.

Across the globe, LGBTQIA+ human beings are seeing their very existence threatened. Our freedom of expression, our safety, our dignity, our right to education and health care are being attacked, but we continue to fight back against efforts to deny our existence.

One of the ways we can fight back is by amplifying and sharing our stories. Chicago is fortunate to have The Warehouse still extant to tell its story, one that speaks to the creativity and global influence of House music. House music is a Chicago invention, and the world has LGBTQIA+ human beings, particularly those of color, to thank for it.

Preservation Chicago deserves thanks for their work to bring the significance of The Warehouse to the attention of the Landmarks Commission, Chicago, and the world. Too many of the places that hold historic significance to Chicago's community of Black, queer people have been demolished with impunity. A special thanks should be given to Max Chavez, Director of Research and Special Projects at Preservation Chicago, for the care and reverence he has shown in his research and advocacy efforts.

If landmarked, the Warehouse will join only two other designated Chicago landmarks representing LGBTQIA+ history, the Rainbow Pylons and the Legacy Walk, located at 3246 through 3708 North Halsted Street, designated in 2012, and the Henry Garber House, located at 1710 North Crilly Court, designated in 2001. This will be a step in the right direction, but Chicago needs to devote more resources to preserving and celebrating LGBTQIA+ history.

Respectfully,

Elizabeth Blasius

This letter is in support of awarding Landmark status to this building and making every effort to preserve it. It is an important piece of the cultural history of the City of Chicago, not only for the gay and black communities, but for the city as a whole. In many ways it is as significant as the Chess Records building on south Michigan Avenue.

Architecturally, the simple, elegant façade with subdued ornament and simple color palette is a precursor to Modern Movement of the mid-century. It is a lovely contributor to the streetscape and should be preserved and protected.

Please give serious consideration to adding this building to the list of Chicago's landmark buildings.

Thank you.

Commission Members:

This letter is in support of awarding Landmark status to these two buildings and making every effort to preserve them. They represent fine examples of Chicago's commercial architecture and contribute significantly to the historic streetscape of what is arguably the first Midwest Main Street in America.

The firm of Holabird & Roche designed a number of significant buildings in this city and others, and the Century Building is an excellent example of their work. While William Le Baron Jenney was not directly involved in the design of the Consumers Building, his philosophies regarding skyscraper design continued to inform the work of his firm after his death, of which this building is an appropriate reflection.

We have seen too many very good examples of the work of Chicago's most prominent architects destroyed. In 1972, I picketed in front of the Chicago Stock Exchange Building to attempt to save it from demolition. The building that took its place is dismal and dull. Surely the Federal Government can come up with a security solution for the Federal Building that makes creative use of the Century and Consumers buildings.

Please give serious consideration to adding these buildings to the list of Chicago's landmarks.

Thank you.

House music began here in Chicago. It started in temporary venues until it found a home at 206 S. Jefferson, fondly known as “The Warehouse.” 206 S. Jefferson should be given landmark status because a new art form grew and evolved there.

Today house music can be heard on every continent, filling stadiums with tens of thousands, influencing musicians and artists. People around the world are now “dancing as if no one is watching.” Even President Barack Obama is a fan.

In 2004 the street was named for Frankie Knuckles, who was known as the “Godfather of House” and is revered by “house heads” around the world. For these house heads 206 S. Jefferson is hallowed ground and would gladly make a pilgrimage to see it.

It is part of our cultural history and should be granted landmark status.

Thank you,

Dear Council,

I am writing to express my support for Landmark Status of 206 S Jefferson St. As one of the original venues for house music, I believe preserving the building is an important step in ensuring that the genre's marginalized creators do not disappear from public conversation.

Despite growing up in Indiana, house music is one of the first things I would think of when I thought of Chicago. And now as a resident, that feeling is so much stronger.

Thank you for reading and I look forward to 206 S Jefferson St being a city landmark.

Take care,

Dear Members of CCL,

I write today as a Chicago resident to express my support for the landmark status of 206 S Jefferson St. This building is the birthplace of house music, specifically Chicago house, a type of music that my friends and I, along with millions around the world, have thoroughly enjoyed listening to no matter the time of day.

I believe that a landmark status signifying the significance of this building, as a sanctuary for the underrepresented and an agent for the founding of a trailblazing kind of music, would be an important step for the City in preserving and recognizing the art of house music that has reached and changed the world.

Thank you for reading and for your consideration.

Just saw an email about writing a letter to you and the deadline is in 9 mins so please excuse the spelling, grammar or typos.

I remember in about 1981 I used to take my boombox to school. The school bus driver only allowed me to play it at level 3 but at every red light between Chicago and Evanston we'd all hear it in true stereo because all the other cars were listening to the same mix on the same radio station.

It's hard to describe the sense of community that music brought about. I had no appreciation at that time that all ears were on Chicago because of this music. They still are but the community has grown larger Chicago or even our "house nation". The entire world knows Chicago House Music. Please help us save its home and namesake. Chicago has destroyed too much of her architectural gems deliberately and much has been lost to fire.

Having a building people can point to is hugely important. It's bigger symbol than the Bulls' dynasty. Please look at what Chicago means to the entire world.

Thanks for your time,

[Warning: External email]

Dear Commission,

My name is Alan King. I am a partner in a Chicago law firm, a member of the renowned Chicago DJ crew the Chosen Few DJs (producers of one of the world's largest house music festivals here in Chicago, the Chosen Few Picnic & Festival), and a member of the Board of Directors of the Frankie Knuckles Foundation. And Frankie Knuckles was my dear friend. In these capacities, I wish to thank the Chicago Commission on Landmarks for considering landmark status for the building where the legendary Warehouse dance club once stood - 206 S. Jefferson - a building of great historical and cultural significance to the City of Chicago and the global dance music community.

As I'm sure you will be flooded with emails in support, I will try to keep this brief. From 1977 to 1982, the Warehouse was the "Mecca" of a culture and a sound that would come to be known the world over as House Music. As a teenager and burgeoning DJ, I spent many wonderful nights (and mornings) at 206, soaking in not only the incredible music expertly played by resident DJ Frankie Knuckles, but learning life lessons of acceptance, peace and togetherness. Warehouse patrons were Black, White and Hispanic, straight and gay, and the club was a refuge for us all - a safe space to enjoy music and dance in ways that today's youth are so sadly deprived of.

House Music has grown into a worldwide phenomenon that continues to have major global impact, but its birthplace is Chicago, its home address is 206 S. Jefferson, and its Godfather is Frankie Knuckles. The City of Chicago should be just as proud and protective of its House Music heritage as it is of our founding contributions to blues, jazz, gospel, and other music genres. The building at 206 S. Jefferson represents in one location the rich cultural history of House Music, and should be preserved for current and future generations to visit and learn from.

I think it would be a well deserved and fitting tribute to the birthplace of House Music to landmark at least the facade of the building (which is unchanged since the Warehouse days) and to provide a plaque or kiosk with historical information marking the significance of 206 S. Jefferson. Through these measures, visitors could learn more about this part of Chicago's cultural history and our contribution to the music world.

Thank you again for your consideration.

Alan King

Good Morning,

I'm writing to voice my full support for designating 206 S. Jefferson as a historical landmark. As the city may be aware, this building was home to the Warehouse, a cultural institution for young, queer men of color for nearly two decades. It is where an entire genre of music started—House music—and the City of Chicago should strive to preserve the building and prevent its demolition or modification beyond what is needed to make it safe and habitable for normal use.

Ideally—the City would work with the owners to restore this place to a music venue serving the same audience.

Thank you,

[Warning: External email]

To the members of the Commission on Chicago Landmarks and all involved in the approval of designating "The Warehouse" as a historic landmark, I believe it should be preserved with that title.

Even though I am not currently a resident of Chicago, I believe Chicago would be remiss not to recognize this building and its historic significance for future generations to know.

I fell in love with Chicago one summer while on a business trip because of the welcoming, open and diverse feeling it presented to me. I being from a "small-big" city and being fortunate to travel across the US and to several foreign countries, know it to possess the unique ability to nurture and create new and innovative archetypes and the Warehouse is a shining example.

At a time when unrest and ignorance was rampant, The Warehouse Nightclub was a place where invisible people could shine and be visible. This due to the genre of music, now known as House music, had its beginnings.

House music has since spread world-wide and continues to be an expression and feeling of complete Peace Love Unity and Respect, which unfortunately have again become less visible in our current state.

This would be an excellent opportunity for Chicago to show the world its dedication to highlight the innovative spirit, diverse recognition and historical relevance that Chicago is famous for.

My hope is that The Warehouse will always be recognized as an important part of Chicago's innovative and beautiful history.

Thank you,

I am writing as a concerned private citizen of Chicago to express complete support for the preliminary landmark designation of 204-208 S. Jefferson Street as a Chicago landmark.

As others such as Preservation Chicago has pointed out, The Warehouse should be protected as a symbol of the rich history of Chicago's gay and Black communities, the incredible story of house music, and the groundbreaking impact that DJ Frankie Knuckles had on the sound of modern music across the world.

I thank the commission for considering my position.

Grant "The Warehouse" Building it's Due Landmark Status

I'm writing to you all the way from Seattle to express the importance of the building where The Warehouse resided, which is up for landmark designation. I could not think of a more culturally relevant place for the worldwide community of house music lovers and queer folks, and I hope to express to you just how deserving of landmark status this place is.

House music saved my life. This isn't hyperbole, it literally saved my life. As a queer person I found my community through house music, in the spaces where house music exists. The history of house music is inseparable from queer history, as well as Black American history. The spaces where house music was pioneered are our holy spaces. Our churches. Our temples. They are the spaces where generations of people have found community, hope, love, and acceptance.

The Warehouse is known across the world as a significant historical landmark for its many contributions to our culture. It's an important part of Chicago's history. I really hope this is recognized by the city of Chicago. It's estimated over the pandemic over 1/2 of ALL queer bars across the country shuttered their doors. In this climate where our community is under direct attack from threats of violence, it is of the utmost importance that we protect our remaining queer spaces, especially those with rich history.

Dear Commissioners,

I am writing to express my strong support for the Preliminary Landmark Recommendation for the building located at 204-208 South Jefferson Street, commonly known as "The Warehouse." This historical site has immense cultural significance as the birthplace of house music, and its preservation is essential to maintaining the rich heritage of Chicago's music and nightlife history.

The Warehouse's unique architecture and cultural significance merit preservation for future generations. Let's keep the heartbeat of house music alive and contribute to our city's rich cultural tapestry by granting landmark status.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter. I trust you will make the right decision to protect this invaluable piece of our heritage.

Hi,

Please allow this letter to serve as my support in favor of 206 S Jefferson being designated as a City of Chicago landmark.

How magnificent and impactful it is for Chicago to serve as the birthplace of House Music. House Music, and the varieties of electronic dance music it has spawned, remains an important part of human culture across the world. House Music events have brought together and facilitated human connection among different cultures, belief systems, genders and life styles. Commemorating this beautiful, tremendous impact with landmark status of its physical origin falls in line with the wonderful preservation of rich culture that embodies Chicago as a world class city.

Thank you for considering this designation.

Sincerely,

Aaron Greenberg

Good morning...

It may have been a little bit after my time at 55, but I have many friends and family members who have fond memories of the Warehouse which, in turn, led to me being a DJ and making house tracks/remixes since the early 90s while still in the military.

I don't even wanna know what could become of the Warehouse or the other two if a movement to give them landmark status wasn't launched, but now that it has and I know about it, COUNT ME IN!! Please add me to the list of supporters of this effort! Thank you for your attention and consideration!

To whom it may concern,

I urge you to designate the building at 206 S. Jefferson Street as a Chicago Landmark of historic significance.

The building's history as the home of The Warehouse club--the namesake and birthplace of the genre known as house music--makes the site a unique place in Chicago and the world. Seldom are you able to point to the exact location where a genre of music was nurtured and developed with the agreement of scholars and those who participated in the history.

Chicago's rich heritage and significance in the development of American music, especially Black American music, has been overlooked as vital elements of the history of jazz, blues and soul music have disappeared into oral history and scholarly tomes.

Here we have the chance to preserve a definitive piece of Chicago and Black Music history, which can hopefully be developed into a site dedicated to memorializing Chicago's most important contribution to world music. Detroit has a museum to Detroit Techno, hopefully Chicago could do the same with House Music.

Dear members of the Commission,

I am writing a letter in support of landmark designation for the Warehouse at 206 S Jefferson, the Century Building at 202 S State and the Consumers Building at 220 S State. I believe it is so important to keep these beautiful vintage buildings as visual markers of Chicago's history. The old building stock, both downtown and in our neighborhoods, is one of the things I love most about Chicago and the architectural details and quality of building materials are something that simply cannot be matched today. It truly sets our city apart. Giving these buildings landmark designation status would not only ensure that downtown Chicago remains architecturally diverse, but also be a sustainability win for the City as there are many environmental impacts if these buildings were ever to be demolished and rebuilt.

Thank you for pushing for preservation of these buildings - one a storied landmark of Chicago house music, and the others two defining features of the Loop.

Thank you,

Landmark designation for The Warehouse

[Warning: External email]

Dear City of Chicago,

I am writing to express my full support for granting landmark status to The Warehouse. As a music enthusiast, I believe that this iconic venue deserves recognition for its significant role in the birth and evolution of house music in Chicago.

The Warehouse is not just a building, it is a historical landmark that has helped shape the music scene in Chicago and around the world. The impact of house music on the cultural fabric of our city cannot be overstated. House music is not just a genre of music, but a movement that has brought people together for decades. The Warehouse played a significant role in making this movement possible and it deserves recognition for that.

As an outsider, house music might be hard to understand, but for those who know, it is much more than just a music scene. It is a community, a lifestyle, and a culture. House music brings people together and creates a sense of belonging that is hard to find elsewhere. The people I have met "in the scene" are some of the most amazing, caring, and wise people around. As someone studying to be a medical student, I have found that house music lovers are some of the most empathetic, caring, and intelligent people I know.

Chicago is lucky to be known as the birthplace of house music, and this is something the city should celebrate. House music has historically always been very diverse, and it has been a symbol of acceptance, LGBTQ+ and Black communities. The Warehouse is a symbol of this diversity, and it deserves landmark status.

The Warehouse has shaped music and created a movement that has had a lasting impact on Chicago and the world. As a cultural and historical landmark, it deserves recognition for its contribution to the city's cultural heritage. Granting The Warehouse landmark status will help preserve its historical significance and ensure that future generations can appreciate its contribution to the city's cultural fabric.

I strongly urge the City of Chicago to grant landmark status to The Warehouse. The building is an important part of Chicago's cultural heritage and it deserves recognition for its historical significance. I hope that you will give this matter your serious consideration.

Thank you for your time and attention.

Sincerely,
Brenna Hattler

To The Commission of Chicago Landmarks

Please accept this letter as a statement and high sentiment of my endorsement of the designation of “The Warehouse” as a Chicago Landmark.

It is my hope that this designation becomes a reality.

Our great city, so rich in culture, should recognize all its brilliance in status and diversity, and it has on countless levels. Preservation of our unique contributions in art, diverse cultures, architecture, history, and all the combined essences that make Chicago so great, can and should meet the mark of preserving our musical culture as well. The Blues, Jazz, Gospel, and House music are ALL rooted in the rich fabric of our city. The Warehouse is where the culture of House, and the now genre of House music is where it all began and where House Music got its name.

This space, this place offered a haven to our diverse African American, LGBTQ+ community and ANYONE who sought the joy of music. It was the place of freedom and release for thousands of people over its years and birthed a musical genre recognized all over the world. When the world rejoices in House Music, it looks to Chicago for its history! When cultures want to find out more about the roots of House music, it comes to Chicago for the story!

The world honors Chicago as the birthplace of this unique and thriving music and culture, Chicago would do a great disservice to itself by not honoring it as well.

The Warehouse is THIS PLACE!

Although our city has many different designations as a reminder of the House music community and the importance of our culture, such as honorary street signs, and special “day” designations for the founders our culture, we do not have a building, a space, a place that can give a starting point of its origins. 206 S. Jefferson IS THIS PLACE!

It is OURS, it is Rich, and it deserves to be designated and preserved as such. The history of House Music, The Culture, the community that is SO well loved and cherished In Chicago, should have a destination where people can see where it all began, and not allow this part of our history to fall by the wayside and fade away.

I encourage you to save our birthplace, so the history of our origins will always be available for future generations to behold.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Warmly

DJ Celeste Alexander

Hello,

I wanted to write to you to show my support of the former Warehouse Club property to have landmark status in the city of Chicago.

As someone who grew up in the area but moved away and has learned to love house music, I find the culture of house music in Chicago, both historically and today, a major draw I'm considering that will make me move back from Minneapolis to Chicago.

Chicago has such a wonderful musical history from a variety of genres, and with the growing popularity of electronic music both in the US and worldwide, I think preserving this a landmark and a museum, along with other house music themed attractions in the area could be a huge boon for tourism and give people another reason to visit the vibrant city of Chicago.

Best,

Stephen Wanca

To Whom it May concern,

I am writing to express my support for the designation of the location of the former Warehouse, 206 South Jefferson as a historic landmark. As an filmmaker and Producer of the film God Said Give 'Em Drum Machines on the history of Techno in Detroit and House Music in Chicago we implore you to recognize the architectural and cultural significance of this structure. I have also had a virtual marker and tribute to the location that has been online on my website the Music Origins Project (<https://musicorigins.org/item/the-warehouse-the-place-where-house-music-got-its-name/>) for many years and I have found that this page is consistently among top visited pages on my website. Thousands of people visit this location each year virtually to explore and learn about the origins of the musical art form called House Music, that was created by Afro Americans and Latinx DJs, Producers, and lovers in Chicago. I believe it is a valuable resource that can be used to teach young people about Chicago music history as we have done with Detroit Techno 101 (<https://musicorigins.org/detroit-techno-101/>) to teach about Techno history and it is vital that it be preserved for future generations.

The Warehouse at 206 South Jefferson, is a classic example of the Chicago Style of club architecture. Its distinctive post industrial grit shows the textures that make Chicago truly unique. But more than just an architectural club music masterpiece, the Warehouse also played an important role in the history of the local community, serving as a center of club community and dance music culture for decades.

By designating the Warehouse as a historic landmark, you would be recognizing the important cultural and historical contributions it has made to your city. This designation would ensure that the building is protected from any alterations or demolitions that could damage its historic integrity, and it would also help to promote public awareness and appreciation for the rich cultural heritage of our city. It would also be providing opportunities for the city that created the art form House music to capitalize on an art form that is driving the multi billion dollar economies of cities like Berlin and Ibiza.

Thank you for your consideration of this important matter. Please let me know if there is anything that I can do to assist you in your efforts to recognize and preserve our city's architectural heritage.

Sincerely,

Save the Warehouse! Landmark the Building Where DJ Frankie Knuckles Created House Music

House music changed the world. And it all began at the Warehouse, where DJ Frankie Knuckles created house music.

Before it's too late, we must urgently recognize, protect and celebrate the three-story industrial building at 206 S. Jefferson Street in Chicago's West Loop.

Despite its extraordinary role in music and cultural history, the Warehouse has ZERO protections against alterations or demolition.

When the building sold in December 2022, the listing mentioned both its music history, and the potential for demolition and new development. Teardowns of vintage industrial buildings in the West Loop for new construction have been occurring at a rapid pace.

Despite persistent outreach by Preservation Chicago, the new ownership has been unresponsive, and plans for the building's future remain unknown.

There is simply too much at stake to allow the whim of an owner to determine its fate.

The City of Chicago must act now to take proactive steps to protect this building of immense cultural significance by designating it a Chicago Landmark.

The Warehouse opened in 1977 with DJ Frankie Knuckles and a state-of-the-art sound system per the vision of owner Robert Williams to convert an old industrial building into a vibrant nightclub creating dancefloor freedom for Chicago's Black gay community.

Drawn to this unlikely destination by the power of the music, The Warehouse became a beloved spot beyond Chicago's Black gay community, inclusive of Chicago's LGBTQ+ community and a wide range of Chicagoans across the city and from every background.

With Knuckles behind the turntables, word began to spread that the Warehouse was the place in Chicago to hear a new type of music, one that forged a harmony between soul, R&B, disco, electronic, and gospel.

Music from the Warehouse, soon became known as "house music."

Love for this new style of music overflowed the brick walls of 206 S. Jefferson Street. Knuckles's remixes were shared across Chicago by cassette recordings, and before long, the love of house music had spread across the globe.

But even as the world of house music has expanded and thrived for half a century, beyond the devoted fans, the place where it all began, this mecca of house music, has been largely overlooked and forgotten.

Despite its extraordinary significant place in music and cultural history, the Warehouse has ZERO protections against alteration or demolition.

In the 1970s and 1980s, the West Loop was a tired and underutilized warehouse district. But today, the demolition of vintage buildings for new construction is common.

The Warehouse sold in December 2022, but plans for the building's future still remain unknown. Despite persistent outreach by Preservation Chicago, the new ownership has been unresponsive.

There is simply too much at stake to allow the whim of an owner to determine its fate.

Preservation Chicago urges the City of Chicago to take immediate action to recognize and protect the three-story industrial building at 206 S. Jefferson Street in Chicago's West Loop where DJ Frankie Knuckles created house music by designating it a Chicago Landmark.

The Warehouse should be protected as a symbol of the rich history of Chicago's gay and Black communities, the incredible story of house music, and the groundbreaking impact that DJ Frankie Knuckles had on the sound of modern music across the world.

A Chicago Landmark Designation would fully protect the Warehouse against demolition and inappropriate alteration.

These walls have a story to tell. And we all should be able to experience first-hand that very place where DJ Frankie Knuckles created house music and changed the world.

PLEASE sign the petition and share it widely.

I am writing in support of the campaign to designate the building where The Warehouse was formerly located (206 S. Jefferson St.) a City of Chicago Cultural Landmark to save the building from demolition or substantial alteration.

This property is an important Chicago cultural landmark that could be repurposed into a museum that would be an important cultural addition to the City of Chicago and would attract people from all over the world. Just last year I met a friend who was visiting from Amsterdam to visit Detroit as the birthplace of techno and Chicago as the birthplace of house music – his sole reasons for making the cross-global journey. The only real house music tourist attractions for him to visit in Chicago were underground murals/landmarks located under the Dan Ryan Expressway, so it would be great to have an actual brick and mortar house music museum that tourists from across the world could read up on and make plans to visit Chicago to attend.

Please let me know where I can find any other information on public comment or hearings relating to this proposal to make the former The Warehouse location a Chicago Cultural Landmark.

Best regards,

To Whom this May Concern:

I am writing to express my deep concern and support for the landmark designation process of The Warehouse building in Chicago, which is scheduled to begin this Thursday. The Warehouse holds immense historical and cultural significance as a sacred ground for house music and a symbol of Chicago's LGBTQ+ and Black communities.

As a global hub for house music, The Warehouse has played a pivotal role in shaping the genre and influencing artists and house heads around the world. It is a beacon of Chicago's rich musical heritage and a testament to the city's cultural contributions to the world. The birth of ARC, a legendary house music night that emerged from The Warehouse, has had a profound impact on the music industry and continues to inspire generations of dancers and musicians.

Furthermore, The Warehouse is not only a cultural landmark, but also a symbol of inclusivity and acceptance. It has served as a safe space for the LGBTQ+ community, providing a platform for self-expression, creativity, and social progress. It has been a beacon of hope for marginalized communities, a place where they can freely express themselves and be embraced without prejudice.

Preserving The Warehouse is crucial to ensure that future generations can appreciate and learn from its historical significance. By granting landmark designation to The Warehouse, we can protect this iconic cultural institution from potential threats of demolition or development, and safeguard its legacy for years to come.

I urge you to wholeheartedly support the landmark designation process of The Warehouse and take every necessary step to preserve this historic site. Let us work together to honor the legacy of The Warehouse and its profound impact on house music, Chicago's LGBTQ+ and Black communities, and the city's cultural heritage.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
Tai Stanek

Hello,

My name is Elijah and I am an audio engineer and technician. I have worked with major artists, local artists, and everything in between and in many different genres and I can say that house is my favorite genre of music. Frankie Knuckles created a legacy that transformed music. House music influenced generations of music makers all over the world and unlike other genres, it continues to keep going. It was never just a fad and it isn't defined by a decade.

And all of this started at The Warehouse. To me and many others, It's a symbol for how a local artist from Chicago can change everything. Please preserve The Warehouse and give it the respect it deserves.

Dear City of Chicago Landmark Commission,

I am writing to express my strong support for the preservation of "The Warehouse" as a landmark designation. The Warehouse is an iconic dance music club that has played a pivotal role in the history of Chicago's LGBTQ+ and Black communities, and has had an immense impact on the global music scene.

As you are well aware, The Warehouse was founded in the late 1970s by DJ Frankie Knuckles, and is widely regarded as the birthplace of house music. The club was instrumental in shaping the sound and culture of this genre, and has been a significant source of inspiration for countless musicians and dancers around the world.

Moreover, The Warehouse was a safe haven for the LGBTQ+ and Black communities at a time when discrimination and prejudice were rampant. The club provided a space for people to express themselves freely and openly, and helped to foster a sense of community and belonging.

It is essential that we preserve this important piece of history for future generations. The Warehouse is a cultural landmark that should be recognized and protected, not only for its historical significance, but also for its ongoing impact on music, culture, and society.

I urge you to consider designating The Warehouse as a landmark, and to take steps to ensure its preservation for generations to come. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Ryan Burgoon

I am writing this is hopes of getting 206 S Jefferson a landmark status. I have traveled the world and in most places I visit someone always wants to know if I ever went to "THE WAREHOUSE" in Chicago. I now live in Los Angeles and the house music community here as around the world looks to the 206 building as the historical place were house music was born. This site should be preserved.

Dear City of Chicago,

As a Chicago resident and passionate house music fan, I strongly urge you to landmark the Warehouse and prevent its demolition.

The Loop has plenty of skyscrapers. There is only one place in the world where house music started -- that place is the Warehouse, and it must be preserved.

House music has become a worldwide phenomenon and touched the lives of millions of people across the globe in an incredibly positive way. Chicago must be proud of its contributions and preserve its unique cultural legacy.

As the Loop transitions away from an office district, its other amenities will be crucial to fostering the success of the neighborhood. The Warehouse should be turned into a house music museum and concert venue where people can visit, learn about, and celebrate the birth of a revolutionary genre of music.

Lots of places to build in Chicago, but there's only one home for house music.

All the best,
Patrick <3

Hello,

I am writing to show my support for the conservation and landmark designation of The Warehouse. A true turning point in not only the history of Chicago, but the world, it is where electronic music transformed into dance music, and gained its name *wareHOUSE.

I hope that not only will the building be saved and marked as a landmark, but that it be turned into a museum/club similar to the format of the MOMEM in Germany. This would take a considerable amount of money to invest to make the space safe, and accessible to all people (ideally wheelchair access). But would allow for the space to possibly be a revenue generator for the city of Chicago, a space where during the day you can learn about the deep history of house music, drawing attention to black and queer culture; and during the night an event space, either privately booked for parties, or for concerts/shows open to the public.

While it would be an achievement in itself to ensure the building is not demolished, it would be a true success to have it restored to its former glory as a Mecca of dance music.

I would love to discuss further details and see if there are any ways I can assist in making sure this becomes a reality.

Thank you for taking the time to read this email, I greatly appreciate it.

Sincerely,
Brendan S.

Hello and thanks for taking the time to hear the people.

Not all tourists come to Chicago for superficial thrills such as shopping on the mag mile or eating pizza.

From a capitalist perspective, demolishing this historic site is a missed opportunity to increase tourism revenue and elevate the Chicago nightlife scene. Music, and in particular house music, is a niche and something that only Chicago can claim the right as the birthplace. Nowhere else in the world can claim that and yet Chicago House is known & adored worldwide. Similar to the preservation of blues and jazz culture/clubs that bring people to this town, house music has possibly the same if not larger audience and community. This historic building could be a museum, a vinyl listening library (eg Stony Island Arts Bank), or obviously can be restored to a lively, inclusive nightclub that exemplifies what house music is all about.

More important than the financial possibilities for the city: Demolishing this is blatant erasure of black and queer history... all to make a dollar. It shows a total lack of regard toward this history and its future.

House music stands for collective joy, inclusivity, self expression, love, movement, freeness to be oneself. It can be emotional, funky, soulful, or even silly. It's healing to dance to. In these times where Chicago sees so much death on our streets, and internationally war is perpetual, we need any sources of joy and restorative, uniting forces we can get. This is an obvious one that speaks to many hearts.

The future of this building is uncertain; what is certain is that those who would consider demolition and erasure as the best option have clearly never danced to Chicago house music and experienced the collective magic. For that, they have my utmost pity.

Make the right choice and join us on the dance floor.

I am writing to support the designation of the Warehouse building as a historical landmark. This building is culturally and historically significant as the birthplace of house music. House music has not only impacted Chicago's cultural but the greater world as a whole! Music is energy which moves people and brings communities closer. The Warehouse was a space allowing for marginalized communities to come together and express their true selves. Impacting even those who lived in oppressive societies as it made it's way through the cracks of the Berlin Wall, leading to House music becoming a symbol of Peace, Love, Unity, and Respect!

Hello,

My name is Elijah and I am an audio engineer and technician. I have worked with major artists, local artists, and everything in between and in many different genres and I can say that house is my favorite genre of music. Frankie Knuckles created a legacy that transformed music. House music influenced generations of music makers all over the world and unlike other genres, it continues to keep going. It was never just a fad and it isn't defined by a decade. And all of this started at The Warehouse. To me and many others, It's a symbol for how a local artist from Chicago can change everything. Please preserve The Warehouse and give it the respect it deserves.

Sincerely,

This was the place that coined the phrase for the genre of music called House music with Frankie Knuckles at its helm. House music saved so many people I know from the streets of Chicago. Places that played House music allowed young Black men to have a place to go and not get involved in gangs or other negative situations after dark. The Warehouse created a music of love and openness around the world and it must be celebrated and honored for its impact in this world and for its Chicago history. #Save206

COMMISSION ON CHICAGO LANDMARKS Regular Meeting a.pdf;

Written statement - Public comment in support of the Warehouse, 204-208 South Jefferson Street, Chicago, Illinois as a Chicago Landmark.

The story of the construction of House Music is not different from Chicago's Blues and Gospel cultures' rise, fall and international resurgence. The world's most popular and widely celebrated music form, Electronic Dance Music (EDM) is just one of the tentacles of current music whose roots develop from Chicago House Music. This genre unequivocally begins with the opening of the Warehouse by entrepreneur Robert Williams.

The House Music story evolves from the reality of Chicago's historical intolerance of different. The city didn't simply segregate Black and white, but cultures, other ethnicities and socio-economic groups. The Warehouse, fashioned as a Black gay membership club, evolved into the mecca that created and accommodated all people, sounds, cultures, dancers, spiritual vocalists and lyricists that exploded into what became a future of acceptance.

Led by "The Godfather of House" resident DJ Frankie Knuckles, The Warehouse's unique symphony of sounds created a global juggernaut that should be preserved in the City of Chicago as the touchpoint to a billion dollar music genre and a lasting contribution to music culture. Chicago has to respect and honor how it has positively impacted most popular music forms in the world. This goes beyond a festival, a street sign or a tribute. This landmark status for the Warehouse, 204-208 South Jefferson Street, Chicago, Illinois proclaims that Chicago loves its citizens, its citizens of color, and its LGBTQ citizens, then also realizes its impact on Chicago History, Black History, Black Music History and Global Music.

Dear Members of the Commission on Chicago Landmarks,

I hope this email finds you well. I am writing to express my strong support for designating The Warehouse at 206 S. Jefferson Street as an official Chicago Landmark. This iconic location has played a vital role in the development of House Music and carries immense cultural significance due to the groundbreaking work of the legendary DJ Frankie Knuckles.

In the late 1970s and early 1980s, DJ Frankie Knuckles began spinning records at The Warehouse, where he pioneered a new sound that would become known as House Music. His innovative approach to mixing various musical genres, such as disco, soul, and funk, with electronic elements, created a unique and vibrant dance music culture. This movement resonated with a diverse audience and laid the foundation for countless subgenres and artists in the decades that followed.

The Warehouse not only served as the birthplace of House Music but also as a sanctuary for marginalized communities during a time of social unrest and inequality. It provided a space for self-expression and unity, transcending the boundaries of race, gender, and sexual orientation. As such, The Warehouse is an embodiment of Chicago's rich cultural history and a testament to the transformative power of music.

By designating The Warehouse as a Chicago Landmark, we have an opportunity to preserve an essential part of our city's musical heritage and recognize the trailblazing work of DJ Frankie Knuckles. Furthermore, this designation will create a platform for education and engagement with younger generations, ensuring that the legacy of House Music endures.

I understand that the process of granting landmark status is complex and requires a thorough assessment. However, given the cultural and historical significance of The Warehouse, I believe that it warrants strong consideration. I urge the Commission on Chicago Landmarks to recognize the importance of this site and move forward with its designation as an official Chicago Landmark.

Thank you for your time and attention to this matter. I hope that you will join me and countless others in celebrating and preserving the rich history of The Warehouse and the invaluable contributions of DJ Frankie Knuckles to the world of music.

Sincerely,

Dear board of decision,

I write from Belgium, in a city alike yours. A city wich has been an industrial epicenter of the industrial revolutions, alike yours. I reside in Charleroi, a former industrial city in transition. I've never been to Chicago, and despite that unfortunate fact, I know a lot about your city. I know about it as much thanks to history class than to the dancefloor. Music is one of the key components of my personal salvation, and honestly, if the house music wasn't born, I would attend to much less venues. And so much music and cultural references are linked to this specific genre that I would not be able to keep track or tell the tale.

I believe history is made from collective symbols, symbols that often eludes the minds of the present because it is seen as mundane. Yet, the Warehouse is a beacon for cross-cultural intergenerational community that spans all around the world. And who wouldn't want to be the Mecca of House ?

By the present email, I, Lambrechts Raphaël ask you to take into consideration all the cultural aspects of the Warehouse, located at 206 South Jefferson Street in Chicago before making a decision regarding it's recognition as a Landmark. Here in Charleroi, the city have destroyed buildings that were parts of it's vibrant heart. I ask you not to make the same mistake and honor all the history of this singular place.

Best regards,

Lambrechts Raphaël

Hello,

“Third places” are social spaces that differ from our first places (home) and second places (work or school). Third places are spaces where people can socialize, relax and take a break from their daily grinds. As we saw with the closure of many physical spaces during the pandemic, the existence of third spaces such as cafes, libraries, churches, gyms, or parks, are vital to maintaining the mental health and overall well-being of our communities.

For many Chicagoans in the late 1970s through the 1980s, The Warehouse at 206 South Jefferson was a refuge where they could relax, socialize, and break a sweat while dancing to the unique house music that Frankie Knuckles and various other DJs played there. House music has since become a billion dollar industry whose reach has gone global, influencing electronic dance cultures around the world, including Europe, South America, and Africa.

When I studied abroad in Galway, Ireland as a college junior in 2017, I'd often get two responses when I told people that I was from Chicago: either disdain over our deep dish pizza or, more often, excitement about our house music. The global dance community recognizes Chicago's impact on music culture and it's time the City of Chicago recognizes that as well by granting The Warehouse with permanent landmark status. We must preserve the memory of the innovations Frankie Knuckles and various other DJs made with house music at The Warehouse.

Thank you,

[Warning: External email]

Greetings Commission on Chicago Landmarks (CCL), Permit Review Committee (PRC), and Program Committee. I already sent this message to ccl@cityofchicago.org but I was instructed to also forward this message to you.

I am Abra Johnson, Marketing & Communication Director for the Chicago Black Social Culture Map (CBSCM), a collective archiving initiative that falls under our parent 501c3 organization, HoneyPotPerformance.

We are saddened and disappointed to learn that the site of the original Warehouse, the namesake of our precious, historic, municipally invaluable House Music and culture is slated to be torn down, unless the process of designating the building as an historic landmark is begun and achieved.

But the efforts of Preservation Chicago to tell the Warehouse's story—a profoundly Chicago, Great Migration, and Queer historical narrative—have served to further ignite and invigorate us and our commitment to preserving Chicago's House Music history. We are so moved by the petition and the thousands of signatures that we, here at the CBSCM, want to introduce our work and, more importantly, testify to the epic significance of the Warehouse, symbolically, geolocally, socially, historically, and dare we say, spiritually—for House Music, especially for “House heads” is soul food, nourishment for our bodies, minds, and spirits.

If you are not familiar with us: The Chicago Black Social Culture Map is a collaboration between Honey Pot Performance, the Modern Dance Music Research and Archiving Foundation, and a team of local cultural historians and cultural producers, the Chicago Black Social Map exists to preserve Chicago's black social cultural lineage - past, present, and future - through an experience that is both fun and informative.

The CBSCM archive includes information centered around social venues, including basic geo-spatial information, first-person stories, and supplemental media, all collected through collaborative community research. Drawing from blues, gospel, disco, and funk as well as dances such as bopping, stepping, and line dances, the archive explores an evolving embodied lineage of African American forms of making community and of cultural resistance. In 2019, we grew that experience into a series of six roving mapping and archiving days focused on the social scene across the city's South, West, and North sides.

At its heart, the archive documents the lived experiences of Black Chicagoans from the Great Migration through the rise of House music, giving this chronically under-documented constituency an opportunity to see their stories and histories represented as written record and archive. Additionally, this collection is accompanied by an archive of oral history interviews from community members, organizers, DJs, venue owners, and musicians who are active participants in this culture. To see and learn more about the map visit our website at <https://www.honeypotperformance.org/about-the-cbscm> .

Critical to archiving these histories that birthed House Music, is recognizing, honoring and centering the founders, the DJs, the music, the scene, and the superbly important location of the Warehouse. For there is no House Music without the Warehouse. Further, there is no Chicago club and nightlife without the exceptional popularity—and the music mixed within the walls of—the Warehouse.

The scholarship on the significance of the Warehouse to a global architecture of “dance music” production and parties, to award-winning music and sold-out cross-continental tours, is prolific. From scholars like Jacob Arnold to Professor Micah Salkind, the story of the music now helmed by everyone from Daft Punk to David Guetta, begins with and in the Warehouse.

And that story both includes and chronicles the epic rise of Robert Williams and now-world-famous DJ, Frankie Knuckles. As noted in the CBSCM archive, “The story of house music culture begins here. A narrow building made of cream brick accented with green art deco diamonds, 206 South Jefferson hosted an all-night, members-only juice bar between 1977 and 1982. Promoter Robert Williams, as well as a team of financial backers and co-promoters, produced the parties there in concert with DJ Frankie Knuckles and his primarily queer, Black, and Latino audiences...” (Salkind, 2019).

But what makes this story even more important, is the diverse demographics of attendees accommodated in a space reconfigured for maximum, even if relatively cozy, entry and with a central location for people across the city to get to. In short, the Warehouse's architectural structure which, because of its intimate accommodation, actually produced a feeling of connectedness and collectivity, along with its centralized geospatial location were two critical reasons for its popularity, as noted again from the CBSCM archive, "At the venue's peak, Williams would squeeze around 2,000 patrons into just 3,000 square feet—a space roughly the size of a suburban home—and two thirds of the venue's real estate was above or below the dance floor. Despite its relatively small size, Warehouse patrons remember the venue as being a space of immeasurable social expansiveness" (Salkind, 2019).

Further, as is lore in Chicago, Warehouse patrons seeking to purchase the music mixes played by Knuckles, Ron Hardy, and other DJs, would often show up to local record and music stores requesting "Warehouse music" or, when shortened, "House music". And these frequent requests shifted the offerings—and the profits—of music stores, themselves seeking to supply increasing demands for these mixes, requiring them to often partner or purchase mixtapes from the Warehouse and DJs themselves, and to make up shortfalls by stocking and selling the albums and artists that appeared in those mixes, whose music was played by Warehouse DJs. Out of this attempt to supply the demand for "House music" requests, came an increased popularity and sales of mixtapes, obscure artists and their music from all over the world, and frequent patronage of record stores and other music selling venues. The Warehouse, therefore in many ways, reinvigorated the record stores here in Chicago and particularly downtown and its surrounding neighborhoods on the near west, near south and near north sides.

The Warehouse also helped to reinvigorate patronage and shopping near downtown, south loop, and surrounding neighborhoods, as thousands of people partying all-night at the Warehouse, both before and after would shop for outfits for nights out, and would dine out overnight at local haunts for late-night dinners or a very-early breakfast. This is not to mention the Warehouse's lucrative benefits to Chicago public transit by which many people conveniently traveled to the Warehouse from all sides of the City—and from the suburbs.

In short, the Warehouse was a central figure in our local economy, even helping to revive it during difficult economic periods in the late 70's through the 90's. Even subsequent clubs and venues—siblings, children, and grandchildren, if you will, of the Warehouse—after its closing, carried House music further north and House music itself became critical to the redevelopment projects of neighborhoods like Wicker Park/Bucktown, West Town, Logan Square, and particularly Lakeview and "Boys Town". Moreover, the Warehouse and House Music built therein, continues their influence and lives on city-wide events in some of the largest and most consistently attended events in Chicago, such as the Chosen Few Picnic, The SilverRoom Block Party, and Fiesta Del Sol.

The impact of the Warehouse on our city—and the globe—is incalculable and invaluable. There is no doubt as to the massive influence House Music has had on the geography, economy, social life, solidarities, and identities of Chicagoans here and abroad, and on this nation and the world, over the last 50 years. This is why CBSCM strongly supports Preservation Chicago's petition and the thousands of people who signed it, to have the site and building designated as a historic landmark and protected from demolition. And we look forward its preserved, landmarked, future, and for us, its possibility as, potentially, a House Music museum, to hold and carry forth this beautiful Black and Brown, LGBTQIIA+, and thoroughly and diversely Chicago history, that epitomizes safe space and social solidarity, into the future, for generations to come.

Surely, our collective action to preserve such a critical part of our city's culture, identity, and history will achieve the historic landmark status the Warehouse deserves and preserve it for younger generations who will call Chicago, the city we love, home.

Respectfully,

Abra Johnson

The Warehouse - Letter of Support for Landmark Designation

To the Commission on Chicago Landmarks:

I am writing to share my support for Landmark Designation of the Warehouse, located at 206 S. Jefferson Street.

There are a number of attributes that contribute to the significance of this site not only as a place of local importance to the City of Chicago, but also nationally and internationally. Locally, the Warehouse is significant as an early and very successful membership-only nightclub that was a safe place to dance and enjoy music for specifically gay, Black men in the 1970s and 1980s during a time when openly gay individuals were in constant danger for being themselves. As the club grew in popularity, it would eventually become a place of dancefloor freedom not only for the LGBTQIA+ community but for many Chicagoans of all walks of life brought together by their love of music. This site is also significant to national and international music history as the site where notable DJ Frankie Knuckles spent years developing music that would eventually become known as “house music.” In a city where a plethora of other musical styles and notable artists have been recognized through Landmarking sites of significance, it is critical that Chicago continues to protect its music heritage.

The Warehouse is significant based on 3 of the 7 landmark designation criteria established in the Municipal Code of Chicago:

Criteria 1- Critical Part of City’s Heritage: The Warehouse is a critical part of Chicago’s music history, Black history, and LGBTQIA+ history as the birthplace of house music.

Criteria 3 – Significant Person: Frankie Knuckles, who was appointed the DJ by the club’s owner, was a significant DJ in the 1970s, is credited with creating house music at the Warehouse in Chicago, and went on to become a world-renowned music producer.

Criteria 4 – Important Architecture: The Warehouse is an industrial building with a glazed brick façade that is atypical of industrial buildings in the West Loop. It is also a rather intact example of industrial architecture in an area that is rapidly losing its historic industrial character to demolition and large-scale new construction.

I strongly urge the Commission to move forward with landmark designation for the Warehouse to ensure this significant site of music history is protected. Thank you for your consideration.

The Warehouse - support for landmark designation.

Dear committee members,

My name is David Trailov. Although I currently live in Los Angeles, I grew up in Chicago and am proud to call Chicago my home. I would like to voice my support for the landmark designation for The Warehouse.

There really should be no question of The Warehouse's place in music and cultural history, and therefore Chicago's history. The Warehouse is the first home of DJ Frankie Knuckles and it is the birthplace of house music!

Frankie Knuckles is a legend. Although born in NY, Knuckles came to life in Chicago and his accomplishments and contributions to music should be celebrated. Knuckles was inducted into the Dance Music Hall of Fame in 2005 and posthumously awarded a Grammy Lifetime Achievement Award in 2021. Knuckles created an industry and his influence spans decades and his music has been heard by countless millions across the globe, inspiring multiple generations of DJs. Knuckles' cultural significance across the globe may, quite literally, only be topped by people like President and Mrs. Obama, Michael Jordan, and Hugh Hefner.

The Warehouse was not just the home to Frankie Knuckles and house music. The Warehouse was also a pivotal venue both socially and culturally, particularly in the black and LGBTQ+ communities. The Warehouse was a place where people from all walks of life could come together to listen to music and dance. It was a safe place and a home to many!

As Chicagoans, we should be proud of the city's contributions to music. From jazz to the blues, hip hop and even rock and roll, Chicago has definitely made its mark in music. But house music is different. These big shoulders gave birth to house music. House music and its cultural significance is ours to claim. And it was at The Warehouse where house music first came to life, taking its first breath on its journey to becoming a world-wide cultural phenomenon. The Warehouse represents an important part of music and culture and it deserves to be recognized and celebrated as such. The Warehouse is already a landmark but deserves to receive landmark designation from this committee.

Thank you!

Kindly,
David W Trailov

Without house music, many of the world's biggest festivals wouldn't exist. Music brings people more happiness than most everyday things, hence why we listen to it everyday. For these two reasons alone, the building formerly known as The Warehouse should be preserved as a historical landmark. The Warehouse is the Pennsylvania State House/Independence Hall of electric dance music. Please don't disappoint us!

Dear Chicago,

please take all steps possible to preserve The Warehouse - its fame is global - and its significance in the history of modern music is truly immense, (can you imagine - no pun intended - Liverpool tearing down The Cavern). The fact that I'm writing this message 40 years after its heyday must underline the passion and love that people around the world have for the building, (I am writing this from London U.K.). I'm sure the City of Chicago can find a way of preserving a building of such cultural importance for future generations, to understand why the City is so pivotal to music throughout the 20th Century! Fingers - crossed that you can find the right solution!!

Love and peace from across the pond,

House music was born in our city and has now travelled across the globe and is one of the most popular musical genres. It has changed and saved countless lives, including mine, and The Warehouse was where it all began.

From the all time legend and pioneer of house, Frankie Knuckles, to current icons John Summit and Green Velvet, Chicago has had no shortage of house music staples.

Thank you for taking the time to read this message.

I was recently made aware of the possibility that the Warehouse is up for Landmark Designation.

This is the club where DJ Frankie Knuckles began – with others – what became the global sensation and movement called HOUSE MUSIC.

I wish to express my STRONG SUPPORT of this and advise that the music from Mr. Knuckles – and this location where it first thrived – was an integral part of my young LGBTQ+ life in the city of Chicago. This place and this man are at the core of some of my strongest Chicago memories celebrating song, dance, and diversity. This place and this man greatly contributed to my own mental health and wellness. I was never able to attend the Warehouse, but its legacy directly impacted me upon moving to Chicago. For this I am extremely grateful and always will be.

I express nothing but the strongest level of support that I can with this opportunity to protect a place and “space within heads and hearts” that began in Chicago and spread to the world.

From Jazz to Gospel to Rock & Roll to Be-bop to Disco to R&B and every musical genre that came before House, they've had significant parts of their story birthed & bred in Chicago. This city has played an important role in all growth of every American musical style. House music is a genre born from this building, named after this club, nurtured at a time when the mainstream world said Disco was dead, this city, club, and culture said no, its not dead, its being re-born. Every dancer, dj, nightclub, and festival that lives & breathes on the oxygen of dance music should be able to come pay homage to where it all began, and to those who made it happen, in this building."

Barbara Steven vain exp	Oak Lawn chicago	IL IL	60453 US 60643 US	3/27/2023 3/27/2023	"House Music is a phenomenon that spread worldwide, and Chicago should preserve its music history (which fuels tourism from all corners of this earth)." "I love warehouse music"
Carter O'Brien	Chicago	IL	60618 US	3/27/2023	"It would literally be crazy not to ensure this remains an accessible Chicago landmark."
Seth Lilley	Chicago	IL	60647 US	3/27/2023	"preserving queer and Black landmarks should be as high a priority as preserving altars to the capitalism that spawns marginalization like the Chicago Stock Exchange room. Save this building in the name of every person who found freedom and lightness in Chicago's very own genre of music."
Ayesha Williams	Chicago	IL	60647 US	3/27/2023	"History needs to be saved and celebrated"
Lorenzo Sandoval	Chicago	IL	60617 US	3/27/2023	"The entire world recognizes Chicago as the birthplace of House music. The scene was absolutely transcendental for Southsiders and West siders in the 1980s and influenced every corner of the world, yet in our own city we pay no regard to this culture or history. The Warehouse needs to be preserved. Chicago cannot lose one if its most culturally significant landmarks."
Portia Hemphill	Ann Arbor	MI	48103 US	3/27/2023	"House music, a global phenomenon, was birthed here."
Helene Duda	Crystal Lake	IL	60014 US	3/28/2023	"The Warehouse is the birthplace of one of the most influential music genres in our world, and was the home of music legends as well as so many marginalized communities from the 70s through the 90s. Without it, our nation and our world would be soooooo much different. It is a Chicago and American institution!"
