The study area boundaries reflect Chicago's Downtown Zoning District, which is generally bounded by Division Street on the north; portions of Ogden Avenue, Ashland Avenue and Halsted Street on the west; portions of Cermak Road and 25th Street on the south; and Lake Michigan on the east. The initial phase of the two-year planning process involves engagement with stakeholders including residents and representatives from business, cultural, and nonprofit organizations, and local leaders and elected officials to establish goals and objectives for the area.
