Steve,

Good to see you (at least from a distance) yesterday. I'm writing about some upcoming travel in my official capacity.

I've been asked to speak on a panel at a conference called "Insight and Influence in Modern Policing" at the University of Toronto's Munk School of Global Affairs and Public Policy. A tentative agenda is attached.

With respect to accommodations, etc., the hosts have sent the following information:

"We are on a shoe-string budget but can pay for an economy class ticket for you and two nights of an agreeable hotel right across the street from the University. There will be a nice dinner on Sunday, the 25th, which I hope you can join, too, since these kinds of interactions can set the tone for the type of conversation we hope to facilitate. There will be a fancier dinner on Monday night courtesy Niche, a record-management system company that likes to listen in on our interactions with police leaders."

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns about these arrangements.

Best,
Deborah
