

Dear Attorney Superfine:

This is a follow-up report about the recent automation conference put on at Harold Washington Library Center by Keystone Systems. The conference (a series of meetings) was designed to explore how best to serve our special populations, utilizing the computer automation system designed for our type of Talking Book Libraries.

During the conference, a dinner reception was held on April 30 in which several city employees participated. The food for the reception was supplied by Keystone Systems. You had explained that this is an exception to the gift rule.

Sincerely,

Deborah Taylor
