CHICAGO POLICE BOARD

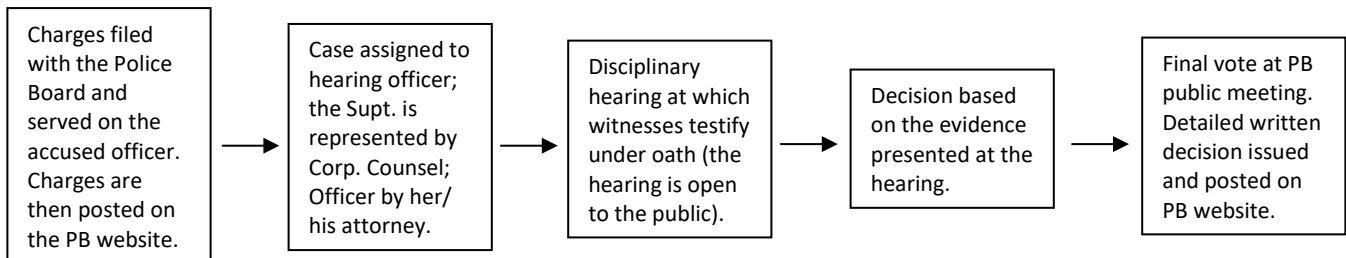

OVERVIEW OF THE PROCESS FOR DECIDING POLICE DISCIPLINARY CASES 1 April 2021

The Chicago Police Board is an independent board of nine civilians responsible for deciding the most serious police disciplinary cases—those cases in which the Superintendent of Police recommends that a sworn officer be discharged from the Chicago Police Department.

How does the Police Board decide discharge cases?

The Role of the Police Board

- The role of the Board is to be an impartial decision-maker that makes decisions based on the evidence made part of the record at the disciplinary hearing.
- All of the Board’s disciplinary hearings are open to the public. Both the Superintendent and the accused Officer have a right to due process—they each have a right at the hearing to present evidence and to cross-examine witnesses.
- The Board takes final action on all cases in public at its monthly meeting, where each Board member’s vote is announced and recorded.
- The Board posts on its website its written decisions, which include detailed explanations of the reasons for the Board’s findings.

Impartiality, due process, and transparency are essential values of any police disciplinary system—guided by these values, the Police Board strives to promote accountability and increase the public’s and police officers’ confidence in the process for handling allegations of police misconduct.
